Total healthcare spending rose to 18.3% of the economy in 2021.

Yet, America’s health outcomes are generally no better than those of two years ago, and in some cases are worse.

Healthcare experts have estimated that 25% of total healthcare spending is wasted.

Healthcare costs are a major driver of increased government spending.

Rising healthcare costs contribute to our national debt. When a household earns $19,466, every $1 spent on healthcare reduces disposable income by $2.

65 million

91 million

More than half of Americans couldn’t cover a $400 unexpected medical expense.

Many individuals spend their own money out-of-pocket for care, rather than rely on their employer or government programs to pay.

$1 trillion

A cost to health and productivity for the U.S. economy, according to a study by the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER).