

SWING STATE VOTERS CARE ABOUT THE NATIONAL DEBT

96%

of swing state voters say it's important that Presidential candidates include plans to address the national debt in their economic proposals.

are urging candidates to have a plan for the national debt to fight inflation, even if that means spending cuts and/or tax increases.

3-IN-4 VOTERS

in these battleground states want candidates to talk more about the debt. That ranks higher than other key election issues including immigration, abortion, climate change, and foreign policy.

Overwhelming majorities of swing state voters agree that the candidates should address the debt to:
